DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 13 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

It is not clear what applicants are claiming as the types of materials, isotropic vs anisotropic, and various modifications cannot be simply construed from the claims as recited with mere reference to examples or drawings.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2817

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-7, 13,14,15,16,17,20,21, and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sinha (US 4,705,979) in view of Yamada et al(US 6,936,837). The reference by Sinha discloses a piezoelectric resonator, crystal resonator, that finds application in number of devices including VCO's. As noted in Col. 5, including TABLE 1, a particular cut(STC-cut) will allow for characteristics including (ZTE=0, temperature coeff.) and has compensation for planar isotropic stress distributions. The reference temperature of operation being about 23 deg Cent.,+/- (see col. 8, lines 34-40).

Art Unit: 2817

The reference by Sinha does not explicitly describe a VCO implementation, however, the reference to Yamada et al, from the same field of endeavor does show that these resonators maybe part of VCO's and serve as compensated timing devices(See col. one).

In light of the above it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have recognized that the resonator of Sinha may be used in a VC, as is conventional, as highlighted in Yamada et al to allow for a temperature compensated timing device.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 8, 9, 10, 11,12, 18,19 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
